From the Democratic National Committee.

Heretofore the leaders of the National political campaigns have been well satisfied if their organizations were in good running order by the first or second week in September.

In the remarkable campaign that is now before the American voters there is one incident that the old line politicians are marveling over and that is the condition of the National Democratic Committee.

For more than a week on the fourth and fifth floors of the office building at 200 Fifth avenue, the National Democratic Committee has been playing in midseason form. The bureaus have been organized and manned in each detail. The corps of employees have fallen into their respective duties like old timers.

The average voter, who is being appealed to, perhaps does not realize the vast amount of work required to educate him to the views of the respective leaders.

If there is anything in a flying start, Wilson and Marshall have certainly secured that start.

The Republican papers of New York City have commented daily on the scenes of activity around Democratic Headquarters and the deathlike silence that pervades at Republican and Progressive Headquarters. But the Roosevelt Headquarters are showing more activity than the Tart Headquarters, but it must be remembered that the "Bull Moose" are trying to organize a new party and have been unable to launch their campaign plans.

The temporary illness of Chairman W. F. McCombs might have caused a slackening up in the activity of the Wilson forces under ordinary circumstances, but this remarkable young man had looked far ahead and the Bureau Chiefs have gone rapidly ahead perfecting their various details.

Vice-Chairman W. G. McAdoo has taken up the duties of Chairman McCombs and will fulfill them for the next week, as Chairman McCombs has been ordered to take a complete rest. His illness was brought about much by the pre-convention contest and then he insisted on giving all his time to the completing of the organization details at National Headquarters.

While Democratic victory is "in the air," none of the various leaders is taking anything for granted. They are organizing and planning to contest every State, every Congressional district, every township.

Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma slowly rocks back and forth in his rocking chair quietly giving his orders on organization to a score of able assistants. The blind Senator has a cheering word and a smile, or a word of advice, for everyone.

Henry Morgenthau, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Treasurer Rolla Wells, have scoured each department for any false movements, until they have the Headquarters organized on thorough business basis.

The quick start of the Wilson and Marshall forces has resulted in a surprisingly large number of small contributors to the campaign fund. Never in the history of the party have the contributors displayed a greater willingness and enthusiasm than in the present campaign fund. Never in the history of the party have the contributors displayed a greater willingness and enthusiasm than in the present campaign. Contributions as a rule are small, varying from one dollar up, but they are nevertheless welcome to Treasurer Wells.

Down at Sea Girt, Governor Wilson is daily meeting dozens of delegations and hundreds of visitors who are promising him their loyal support. His preliminary speeches of the campaign show his clear grasp of the vital questions before the voters.

"It is not a question of winning now or never," said Joseph Daniels, Chairman of the Publicity Bureau, "but it is a question of how large and how impressive our victory will be. And here many people say that the Democrats have a better chance this time. We know that. We also know that we are going to win. And we also think that we have a surprise for the Republicans and 'Bull Moose' in demonstrating that not a slight majority, but an overwhelming number of people favor Wilson and Marshall."

Almost every State in the Union is undergoing an educational revolution in its rural districts. Those states which have been successful in their educational campaigns are now the example for other States. They have shown that good schools have restored to the children their birthright, a good education, of which they had been shamefully robbed by the neglect of the voters. It has also been demonstrated that land values increase with better schools, and that the children are made of practical help to themselves and parents. Parents have profited socially by making a social center of the school house where entertainments are given and plans for the upkeep of the districts are discussed. The school mill tax amendment will do this for Missouri's rural districts.

This State is thirtieth in the proportion of its per per capital tax for school maintenance, which is a disgrace. There are editors in Missouri so alarmingly ignorant they are telling voters to scratch the Yes on every constitutional amendment in order to defeat certain measures. Such a scheme carried out would defeat the school mill tax and other good measures. Missouri certainly needs education badly when an editor, the one man above all who is supposed to dispense enlightenment, resorts to such measures and when the ignorance of the voters is so glaring they must be told how to scratch a ballot because their brains are of no service. Can Missouri afford to defeat the school mill tax amendment in face of situations like these?

Rev. Warren P. Clark returned Friday evening from Arcadia, Mo., where he had been on church business.

Mrs. David Proffitt went to Kansas City Saturday for a few days' visit.

Misses Mattie and Mary Marquis went to Kansas City Saturday for a few days' visit.

Rev. C. L. Fowler went to St. Joseph, Mo., Saturday, where he preached Saturday.

COMMON SENSE SILO

Silos—	Us

We Have A New Idea That Builds A

Perfect Ensilage Preserver at the Least Cost of Construction and the Most Substantial Wood Building that can be Erected

The farmer knows that the silo utilizes all the feed value of farm crops and makes feeding a matter of two hours light work instead of a day of drudgery hauling feed.

One acre good corn equals 10 tons silage.
Ten tons silage feeds three head cattle 6 months.
One acre in silo is worth about 3 in the crib.
One ton silage occupies 50 cu. ft.
One ton hay occupies 500 cu. ft.

It will be seen that ten times more space is required for hay than silage and it is not possible to construct even a cheap hay shed, to say nothing of a barn, for the price required to store the same quantity of silage.

The question is what kind of a silo to build. We recommend the Common Sense method of silo construction because:

It is within the means of the smallest feeder, as the height is not fixed and it can be added to from year to year as the herd increases. The walls are substantial and can not collapse!
No hoops to tighten.
No braces necessary.
Will not shrink or buckle.
It is so simple to construct that anyone can build it.
No door expense. Doors are cut out of the solid section of wall and beveled, making them practical, simple and air tight.
This silo is built with 6, 7, 8, 9 or 10 sides and is made of 2x4's—6 ft. laid like brick flatwise, and lined with acid-proof prepared roofing, making it absolutely air tight.
